

JOINING PFA — YOUR FIRST STEPS

A New Agent Roadmap from Your Recruiter, Jessica Alvarez
Premier Financial Alliance • National Life Group

Welcome. This page is the honest version of how this works: what it costs, what you study, what happens after you're licensed, and what separates the agents who earn from the agents who quit in 60 days. Read it before you pay anything.

STEP 1 — Join PFA: $125

What your $125 membership is for:

- Your Premier Financial Alliance associate membership and your personal PFA back office / agent website, where your business, training, and team activity are tracked.
- Access to PFA's training system, team meetings, mentorship, and the field-training structure — you learn by going on appointments with an experienced agent, not alone.
- Eligibility to be contracted, once you're licensed, with carriers PFA works with — including National Life Group (Living Benefits: Term and IUL) and Foresters.
- A business you build as an independent contractor (1099) — part-time or full-time, no territory assigned, in English and Spanish in our Texas market.

What the $125 does NOT include — budget for these too: your state life insurance license, your exam fee, fingerprinting and state application fees, and Errors & Omissions (E&O;) insurance once you're selling. No one at PFA can promise you income. Anyone who guarantees earnings is not telling you the truth.

STEP 2 — Study & Pass Your License Exam: about 3 weeks, $35 exam fee

You study the state-approved life insurance course, then sit for the Texas life agent exam (exam fee $35 as quoted by our team — state application and fingerprint fees are separate and can change, so confirm the current total before you schedule).

- Week 1: Life basics — term vs. permanent, premiums, beneficiaries, underwriting, policy provisions.
- Week 2: Products in depth — Term, Whole Life, Indexed Universal Life, Living Benefits / accelerated riders, annuities basics, retirement income concepts.
- Week 3: Texas law, ethics, replacement rules, and suitability — then practice exams until you're consistently scoring 80%+. Then schedule the real exam.
- Pass tips from agents who made it: study daily in short blocks, take every practice test twice, and don't schedule your exam until your practice scores say you're ready.

After you pass: apply for your Texas license, complete fingerprinting, get E&O; coverage, finish carrier contracting and product training (including AML). Only then may you sell — never before you're licensed and appointed.

STEP 3 — Your First 30 Days: 5 Recruits / 5 Sales

Once you're a licensed, contracted agent, our team's fast-start standard is 5 sales and 5 recruits in your first 30 days. Understand what that really means:

- 5 sales does not mean selling alone. Your first sales are field-training appointments with Jessica or another upline trainer in the Zoom with you. You watch, then you help, then you lead.
- 5 recruits does not mean pressuring people. It means inviting 5 people from your own list to hear the opportunity — starting with clients who just saw Living Benefits work for their own family.
- It starts with your list. In your first week you'll write your Project 100 — 100 names of people you know. No buying leads. No cold-calling strangers until your warm list is worked.
- Why 30 days? Speed builds belief — yours. Agents who run their first appointments in week 1 learn more in a month than agents who 'study the business' for a season.

A realistic first-month picture (example only, not a promise)

At Jessica's current 45% rate, one average Term policy around $80/month is roughly $432 in first-year commission, and one average IUL around $150/month is roughly $810 on its target premium. A new associate's own rate is on their PFA compensation schedule — ask for it in writing. Your actual rate is on your PFA compensation schedule — ask for it in writing. Five placed sales can therefore be a meaningful first month, but only policies that issue and stay in force pay and stay paid.

STEP 4 — Learn to Talk to People (Scripts Are Provided)

You will not be handed a phone book and wished luck. You get word-for-word scripts and you practice them with your trainer:

- Just meeting people: a 30-second introduction — who you help, the Living Benefits difference, and one question: “Do you know which kind of policy you have?”
- Family & friends: the practice-review invite — 30 minutes, no charge, honest feedback, no pressure.
- Cold calling: short, respectful, and aimed only at booking the free review — never at selling a policy on a cold call.
- Objections: practiced answers for “I already have insurance,” “I have it through work,” “I need to think about it,” and “it's too expensive.”

WHAT THE BEST AGENTS DO DIFFERENTLY

- 1 They work their list daily — 20+ conversations a week — and track the numbers.
- 2 They show up to every team training (including our Morning Brew sessions) and stay coachable.
- 3 They sell honestly: approved illustrations only, “illustrated, not guaranteed,” Living Benefits acceleration explained as discounted — every time.
- 4 They deliver every policy personally and ask for referrals at delivery.
- 5 They protect clients first — suitability, correct beneficiaries, and for special-needs families, extra care so a policy never harms a child's benefits.

YOUR TOTAL START-UP — AT A GLANCE

Item	Cost	When
PFA membership	$125	Day 1 — Step 1
Pre-licensing study course	Varies by provider — ask Jessica for the lowest fee option	Week 1-2
State life exam fee	$35 (as quoted — confirm current fee)	End of Week 3
State license application + fingerprinting	Separate state fees — confirm current cost	After you pass
E&O insurance	Required before selling — monthly/annual premium	At all times

Questions before you start? Ask Jessica directly. If the numbers, the costs, or the work ever sound different from this page, trust this page — and ask why.
